

Names found in Parker Library printed books catalogued on the University of Cambridge online union catalogue.

Names may be present in books for a variety of reasons. Inscriptions suggest it was the custom for Fellows of the College to present books to the Library on relinquishing their fellowships. In these cases, the books were unlikely ever to have been in the personal library of the donor, who may have given money for their purchase rather than the books themselves. The presence of more famous names may record presentations by authors of one of their works, either to the library itself or to a previous owner. A number of these names represent former owners of the books, which later made their way by bequest, donation or purchase to the library at Corpus Christi. Finally, there are a small number of names of binders, second-hand booksellers and authors of letters found inside books.

Forms of name are taken where possible from the Library of Congress Name Authority File, supplemented by Venn's Alumni Cantabrigienses (Cambridge, 1922-54), the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography and other reference sources. The identification of some of the names with known historical figures should be regarded as conjectural at present.

Donors of significant collections to the Library appear in bold in this list.
