FURTHER PARTICULARS
COLLEGE RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP/LECTURESHP IN LAW

Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (UK), seeks to appoint a Research Fellow/Lecturer in Law from October 2018 (or as soon as possible thereafter).

Applications are invited from outstanding researchers in any fields of legal scholarship. However, it may be an advantage to offer undergraduate teaching in one or more of the areas in which the College has a teaching need, namely Criminal Law, Constitutional Law, Land Law, EU Law and Equity. It is envisaged that the successful candidate will be a scholar in the early stages of his or her career for whom a short-term post would prove to be an attractive opportunity to enhance their research and academic profile. He or she will be elected a Fellow of the College, and will carry the title of Mawson Research Fellow/Lecturer in Law.

The appointment will be for a fixed term of three years, and the salary will be, depending on seniority, on point 38-44 of the Cambridge University Spine (currently corresponding to c. £28,500-c. £34,000 p.a.). Lecturing or examining (by invitation) for the Faculty of Law will attract additional remuneration. The appointee will also enjoy the privileges of a Fellowship: for example, up to seven meals (lunch or dinner) per week without charge at High Table; rent-reduced College accommodation (if available) or an accommodation subsidy; an annual research allowance.

A Research Fellow is expected to pursue learning in his or her chosen field and publish the results. The College’s academic environment will provide favourable conditions for research, which will be undertaken freely and without oversight on the part of the College.

As a College Lecturer, the teaching requirement will be six hours per week during Full Term, comprised of small-group supervisions for the undergraduates of Corpus Christi College or, by exchange arrangements, of other colleges. The successful candidate will be expected to direct studies in Law if needed, to encourage the wider flourishing of the legal community at Corpus Christi, (including the Nicholas Bacon Law Society), and to participate in the recruitment and admission of students to the College (including College and University open days, master classes and summer schools).

Applications should be sent electronically as PDF files to the Master’s PA at masters-secretary@corpus.cam.ac.uk by Thursday, 12 October 2017. They should include a covering letter detailing the applicant’s interest in the post and which Law Tripos subjects the applicant proposes to teach, a curriculum vitae with details of the candidate’s education record, publications, research, teaching and professional experience, one publication or a piece of work representative of the candidate's research at its best (no longer than 12-15,000 words), and the names and addresses of three referees who should be asked by the applicants to send references electronically to the Master’s PA at the address above and by the same date. Interviews will take place the week beginning on 27 November.

For further informal information please contact the Senior Tutor, Dr. Marina Frasca-Spada by email on mfs10@cam.ac.uk.
Law at Corpus

Corpus Christi College usually admits between four and seven undergraduate lawyers per year and so there are normally 18-20 undergraduates in residence in total. In addition there are usually about six LLM and/or PhD students forming part of the College’s large graduate community, centered around Leckhampton House, off Grange Road.

Lawyers who are also senior members of the College include:

Professor David Ibbetson, Regius Professor of Civil Law and President of Clare Hall, is Praeceptor in Law (Fellow 2000-2013). He supervises Civil Law and Legal History.

Dr Jonathan Morgan, Senior Lecturer in Law, Fellow and Director of Studies in Law (since 2012), supervises Contract Law and Torts.

Professor Nigel Simmonds, Professor in Jurisprudence, Fellow in Law (since 1985), supervises Jurisprudence.

Dr Andreas Televantos, Preceptor and Affiliated Lecturer in the Facult of Law, supervises Land Law.

Current Honorary Fellows of the College include former Court of Appeal judges Sir Murray Stuart-Smith and Sir Martin Nourse; Baroness Butler-Sloss (the first woman to sit in the Court of Appeal and to preside over a Division of the High Court); Lord Hodge (Supreme Court of the United Kingdom); and the current Master of the Rolls, Sir Terence Etherton.

The College has an active subject group, the Nicholas Bacon Law Society (http://nbls.soc.srcf.net), run by student members under the honorary presidency of Mr Justice Stuart-Smith. The Society organises parties, speaker meetings and a moot for all fresher undergraduates. In addition the Society’s annual dinner brings together past and current law students and legal practitioners.

The separate Corpus Christi Nicholas Bacon Fund (Registered Charity 1115923) provides financial support to law (and other) students at the College, for the assistance of their studies.
